Property Manager Android Application Testing

Test	Expected outcome	Actual outcome	What needs to be done?
Users can register their email address to log in via the email login	Users can register on the app using the firebase's email authentication login	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Users can log-in using their existing email account	The firebase's email authentication login could be used to login on the app using existing email account	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Users can register their google email address to login via the google login	User can create google account using the firebase's google authentication login	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Users can log-in using their google account	The firebase's google authentication login could be used to login on the app using prestored google accounts on the phone	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Automatic login (remember your login account)	The application authentication login remembers the user phone and automatically login	The application authentication login displays all the emails that are prestored in the mobile and gives the user the option to pick one of them	The outcome is better than what was expected.
Click on my account button	Users could see their name, email, sign out button, and delete account buttons	The user account button only works when the user is on the homepage	Remove account button from all the pages except the homepage
Click on the about option of the setting drop menu	Shows the current version of the app and a short description	does not do anything	Add it to the app

Click on the FAQs option of the setting drop menu	Displays a list of frequently asked questions	does not do anything	Add it to the app
Click on the Feedback option of the setting drop menu	Allows the user to submit feedback to the app development team	does not do anything	Add it to the app
Customer button is clicked that is located on the homepage	User can view all existing customers and their property details after clicking the customer button	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
click on the + button	User can add new customers to the system	The outcome is as expected	Nothing customer detail button is clicked	User could view any customer personal details on the database if the customer detail button is clicked	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
click on the edit button in the customers details page	User could edit any customer personal details on the database if the edit button is clicked	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
click on the delete button in the customers details page	User could delete any customer personal details from the database	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Clicking the add property button of a customer detail page	User can add property details	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
When adding a new property to a customer	User can add properties location to the property	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
When adding a new property to a customer	User can add external property images	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Click the edit button of any customer property details	User change property details of any customer property	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Click the delete button of any customer property details	The property is deleted from the customer database	The outcome is as expected	Nothing

Click on the photo reel button that is located on the property detail page	User can view the customer property images that has been previously uploaded and its description.	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
When adding a new property to a customer	User can add rooms images and their details to a property	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Clicking the properties button of a customer	The application will show all of properties owned by that customer	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Clicking on the delete button that is on the account details page	User can delete their account from the application	The outcome is as expected	Nothing
Clicking on the sign out button that is on the account details page	User can sign out from the application	The outcome is as expected	Nothing